

My Last Five Girlfriends

500 Days of Summer gets the
High Fidelity treatment

Synopsis:

A clever adaptation of international bestseller On Love by Alain de Botton, in which Duncan is a young man determined to find the secret to a healthy, strong relationship. Along the way, he mines his last five doomed romances for clues.

- Timed to release for Valentine's Day, MY LAST FIVE GIRLFRIENDS is the perfect date movie—appealing to women yet told from the male point-of-view.
- Cast includes Brendan Patricks (Heroes and Villains) and Naomie Harris (Pirates of the Caribbean).
- Social media outreach to include lovers of rom-coms and women's groups.
- Online media campaign (23MM impressions) to support DVD release.
- Reminiscent of Woody Allen comedies.

Reviews:

"A captivating whirlwind of a tale, tapping into Michel Gondry/Charlie Kaufman-esque surrealism and wry quirkiness." —NY Press

"If you believe you have seen the last possible innovations in romantic comedy, think again and see this film." —Monsters and Critics.com
