WAITING FOR HOCKNEY

A fascinating meditation on art, realism and obsession

- Aired on the Sundance Channel, following a successful run at 17 major film festivals.
- Features legendary artist David Hockney; potential promotion around exhibits of Hockney's work.
- Potential partnership with Faber-Castell pencils, the world's largest pencil manufacturers.
- PR and grassroots outreach to art fans, particularly fans of David Hockney (3K Facebook followers) and Chuck Close (8K Facebook followers).

SYNOPSIS Maryland artist Billy Pappas devoted nearly a decade of his life to a single drawing of Marilyn Monroe. Working on a microscopic level, he hoped to create an entirely new art form. When Billy finally completes his portrait, he believes only one person can determine whether he has succeeded: Renowned contemporary artist David Hockney. WAITING FOR HOCKNEY narrates the offbeat and poignant story of Billy and the eccentric people who believe in him as they conspire in the service of one grand concept. Through Billy's experiences with his art and with Hockney himself, the film illuminates both the perils and payoffs of one man single-mindedly pursuing his dream to its ultimate conclusion.
