A clever romantic comedy and "one of France's best new films"
(Huffington Post)

Synopsis Jean-René (Benoît Poelvoorde, Coco Before Chanel) is the boss of a chocolate factory and Angélique (Isabelle Carré, Private Fears in Public Places) is a talented chocolate maker. They are both emotionally-challenged people. Drawn together through a shared passion for chocolate, Jean-René and Angélique fall in love, but neither is able to express how they feel. Sadly, their crippling shyness is driving them apart. But eventually, they manage to overcome their lack of self-confidence, and risk baring their true feelings.
