Winner of the Special Jury Prize at the Sundance Film Festival, P.O.V. presents FARMINGVILLE, a provocative, complex, and emotionally charged look at the ongoing nationwide controversy surrounding a Long Island, NY suburban community, its ever-expanding population of illegal immigrants, and the shockingly hate-based attempted murders of two Mexican day laborers.

Sharply directed with great intimacy by filmmakers Carlos Sandoval and Catherine Tambini, both of whom moved to Farmingville after the tumultuous clash catapulted the town into national headlines, FARMINGVILLE is an endlessly enthralling glimpse into an issue that continues to anger, frighten, and confuse the many faces of America.

- Premiered on P.O.V., America's most-watched independent documentary showcase, on June 22, 2004.
- Major award-winner at some of the country's top festivals including Sundance (Special Jury Prize), CineFestival (Best Documentary), and San Diego Latino Film Festival (Best Documentary).
- Theatrical playdates in over 25 major markets.
- In the midst of America's fourth and largest wave of immigration, FARMINGVILLE addresses one of today's most heated and controversial topics.
- Award-winning filmmakers Carlos Sandoval and Catherine Tambini lived and worked in Farmingville, New York during filming so they could capture first-hand the stories of residents, day laborers, and activists on all sides of the debate.
