

SYNOPSIS: In the fast-paced sequel to "At Risk," Monique Lamont (Andie MacDowell) and Win Garano (Daniel Sunjata) reunite to investigate Boston's most famous criminal. Attempting to generate much-needed publicity for her flagging political aspirations, Monique orders Win to reopen the investigation of the brutal, decades-old murder of a young blind woman named Janie Brolin. Janie's boyfriend was the main suspect in the original investigation, but Monique has another suspect in mind — the Boston Strangler. Win must work closely with a no-nonsense and combative female detective named "Stump" (Ashley Williams) to unpeel layer upon layer of the 40-year-old crime. Win and Stump's relationship evolves as they uncover the truth about Janie's death and track down a psychopath who is leaving their witnesses and colleagues dead in his wake.
