"Smart and fun, with a killer performance by Mark Duplass." — IndieWire

"Duplass shines like a sea-scrubbed Rainier Beer can." — Austin Chronicle

"An acerbic but realistic coming-of-age story." — Cinematical

July 11, 2011 – Meet Sam Bryant. He's a 34-year-old Seattle rocker with no job, no record deal, no girlfriend and no place to stay, until he finds room at his Aunt Sharon's house in the suburbs. He's also the last guy anyone would pick to take two teens camping for some quality dude time.

Mark Duplass (Humpday, The League), Oscar®-winner Melissa Leo (The Fighter), Bret Loehr (Identity), and newcomer Carr Thompson star in Craig Johnson's feature directorial debut, releasing on VOD, digital platforms and DVD on August 30.

TRUE ADOLESCENTS follows an unlikely trio of two adolescent boys and one immature grown-up into the rugged Pacific Northwest, where unforeseen revelations and transformations force them to face adulthood—filmed on location in Washington State's scenic Cascade Mountains and the Olympic Peninsula. Set to an indie rock soundtrack featuring Band of Horses, The Black Keys and Devendra Banhart, among others, the film reminds us that sometimes you need to get lost to truly find yourself.

Ahead of the film's platform release, Flatiron Film Company will present TRUE ADOLESCENTS in a limited theatrical run at Brooklyn's reRun Theater in New York, beginning Friday, July 29, with a special Q&A with Mark Duplass, the filmmakers, and film critic and reRun curator, Aaron Hillis, following the 7:00pm and 10:00pm premieres.

TRUE ADOLESCENTS premiered at the SXSW Film Festival in 2009 and was an official entry in several festivals including The Seattle International Film Festival, Nashville Film Festival, Raindance International Film Festival, and Sidewalk Film Festival. Film poster and DVD box illustration was created by acclaimed comic book artist, Cliff Chiang (DC Comics' Wonder Woman).

About reRun

In March 2011, Entertainment Weekly called reRun one of 8 nationwide theaters "redefining the moviegoing experience." Featuring 60 stadium-style seats (mostly reclaimed from minivans), an all-digital 1080p HD projector coupled with a JBL 7.1 surround pro-audio sound system, a 12-foot screen, a full bar with two rotating beer taps and a gourmet snack counter, reRun offers the kind of intimate art-house theater experience you'd expect from the creators of the funky gastropub reBar (just down the hall at 147 Front Street, mezzanine level, Brooklyn). reRun is curated by film journalist Aaron Hillis (Village Voice, GreenCine Daily). Traditional and creative snacks created by reBar's Executive Chef Jeremy Leech and Executive Pastry Chef Megan A. Hilbert. Website: <http://www.reruntheater.com>
