BEST DOCUMENTARY FEATURE

MURDER

on a Sunday morning

A gripping, edge-of-your seat whodunit, MURDER ON A SUNDAY MORNING catapulted to the top of "must see" lists everywhere when it emerged to win the Academy Award® for Best Documentary Feature.

Jacksonville, Florida, May 2000. Mary Ann Stephens is shot in the head at point blank range in front of her husband. Two hours later, Brenton Butler, a 15 year old black male, is arrested walking down a nearby street. Mr. Stephens identifies him. Butler signs a confession.

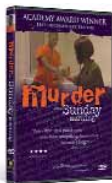

Everyone involved with the case, from investigators to journalists, is ready to condemn Butler, except his lawyer, Patrick McGuiness. In a dramatic and absolutely spine-tingling sequence of events, McGuiness and his team reopen the inquiry, and together discover a slew of shocking and troubling elements about the case. Did Brenton write his own confession? Where is the concrete evidence? And most importantly, can the police be lying?

- The 2001 Academy Award® Winner for BEST DOCUMENTARY FEATURE.
- A cinematic triumph, and one of the most intensely gripping films of the last decade.
- A film with tremendous critical acclaim across the board.
- As seen on HBO: America Undercover.
