An unforgettable testament to the triumph of love over death, DEATH: A LOVE STORY offers a colorful and thought provoking portrait of the great challenge we must all one day face. Acclaimed filmmaker Michelle Le Brun and her husband, award-winning producer and actor Mel Howard (Hester Street), were married only two years when Mel was diagnosed with a terminal illness. As the couple grappled with the news, Le Brun courageously picked up her camera and embarked on an intimate journey through the last year of his life.

A valuable and ultimately uplifting film for anyone who has ever experienced a loss of a loved one, DEATH: A LOVE STORY reveals the clarity that death offers when we are able to put our fears, confusions, and denial aside and simply sit and listen to our loved ones as they pass. And perhaps most importantly, for all its irony and emotion, DEATH: A LOVE STORY shows us that life's greatest gift can be found in the seed of death.

- Nominated for a Grand Jury Prize at the Sundance Film Festival, DEATH: A LOVE STORY also won major awards at The San Francisco and Santa Barbara Film Festivals.
- The subject of DEATH: A LOVE STORY, Mel Howard, was a prolific stage and film actor, starring in such award-winning films as Renaldo and Clara (directed by Bob Dylan) and the Academy Award®-Nominated Hester Street.
- From award-winning filmmaker, Michelle Le Brun.
