

SYNOPSIS VIRTUAL JFK investigates one of the most debated "what if" scenarios in the history of U.S. foreign policy: What would President John F. Kennedy have done in Vietnam if he had not been assassinated in 1963? The film makes use of an array of resources including recently declassified and never-before-seen archival footage, documents, and audio tapes, following JFK through six deep foreign policy crises (Cuba to Vietnam). The heart of the film deals with the question: Does it matter who is president on issues of war and peace?

VIRTUAL JFK: VIETNAM IF KENNEDY HAD LIVED

Intimate, unprecedented access to JFK as president

- Limited theatrical/festival run in more than 25 US/Canadian markets including NY and LA in 2008-2009, to critical acclaim.
- The companion book by three of the film's producers (Rowman & Littlefield Publishers) comes out in paperback in October 2009.
- Timed for the anniversary of JFK's assassination (November 22, 1963), the film is especially relevant now, as another young president seeks to end America's involvement in a war on foreign soil.
- From the producer of THIRTEEN DAYS, the film features recently declassified and previously unseen/unheard footage and audio recordings of JFK as he deals with such key events as the Bay of Pigs, the Cuban Missile Crisis, and the escalation of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.
- Grassroots marketing efforts to target the history/political audience as well as JFK conspiracy fans.
- PR campaign will focus on political/history pubs and sites (Huffingtonpost.com), tapping into anniversary coverage and parallels between JFK and Obama.
