

CAT DANCERS

An Untamed Love Consumed Them All

Art Not Final

A stranger-than-fiction tale of love and tragedy in the world of exotic cat entertainment

Unlike anything else you've seen, CAT DANCERS is the mesmerizing and haunting tale of Ron and Joy Holiday, the husband-and-wife team who first engaged the world in the art—and tragedy—of exotic cat entertainment. Their marriage takes on a new twist when the youthful, charismatic Chuck Lizza joins the Holidays as a performer. The introduction of Jupiter, a rare white Bengal tiger, to the act turns out to be a fatal mistake.

Skillfully directed by Harris Fishman with a moody score by String Theory and the very personal narration of Ron Holiday, CAT DANCERS includes unadulterated joy and unspeakable loss, as well as bewitching footage of the felines both on and off stage, resulting in a provocative and intoxicating walk on the wild side that you won't soon forget.

- Premieres on HBO December 15, 2008.
- Featured at the SxSW, Los Angeles, and Vancouver International Film Festivals, CAT DANCERS has received extensive buzz and strong reviews.
- Like other quirky true-life films such as Crazy Love and Grizzly Man, the story of CAT DANCERS is tantalizing, sensational, and riveting.

"...riveting ...skillfully executed...
This story of various forms of crazy—
or at least unconventional—love
...tantalizes long after the lights come on."
