THE HISTORY CHANNEL® answers the question: are humans to blame for global warming?

Few today would still deny that the Earth is getting gradually and unmistakably warmer. Arctic ice is melting, sea levels are rising, and glaciers are shrinking at alarming rates. But is this vast, potentially catastrophic, climate change the result of human behavior? Or rather part of the Earth's natural cycle, played out over millennia? Or some combination of the two?

THE HISTORY CHANNEL® takes an in-depth look at the science behind the hot-button issue of climate change. Shot on location at weather labs and science explorations around the globe, A GLOBAL WARNING? provides a fascinating look at the story of the Earth's 600-million year climactic evolution and an introspective glimpse at the future of man's longevity of our planet.

- Global warming is one of today's hot topics—destined to grow as the 2008 presidential elections near.
- The success of recent social and environmental documentaries (Planet Earth, An Inconvenient Truth) demonstrate strong consumer demand for this genre.
- CGI imagery and interviews with scholars and scientists bring the nuts and bolts of this issue to life.
